

Lifting further restrictions on media ownership would be disastrous. Independent, investigative journalism would be compromised; community needs would be ignored, diverse voices would be silenced; and local jobs would be lost. Corporations are concerned with profit; not with educating and informing the public.